Query title	A mapping of the current funders of disability inclusion and other equalities areas globally
Authors	Anisha Saggu, Nilanjana Bhattacharjee and Barry Smith
Date	June 2025
Query	To undertake a global donor landscape review focused on disability inclusion. The aim is to map out who is currently funding disability inclusion, including public, private and philanthropic actors, drawing on publicly available data and supplemented where necessary with key informant interviews (KIIs).
Enquirer	Susannah Rogers

Research Questions

1. Who are the current funders of disability inclusion globally — including bilateral and multilateral donors, private sector actors, and philanthropic donors (e.g. foundations, high-net-worth individuals)?
2. What are these actors currently funding in relation to disability inclusion?
3. What is the geographic and thematic scope of this funding (e.g. global vs regional vs country-level focus; sectoral areas of emphasis)?

Introduction/overview

This query maps the current donors and funders globally that have a focus on disability inclusion. These include bilateral and multilateral donors, private sector actors, philanthropic donors, foundations, and high-net-worth individuals. It provides an overview of what these donors are currently funding in relation to disability inclusion, what they are thematically and geographically focused on, and what they are generally funding.

Please note that FCDO cannot be held responsible for errors or any consequences arising from the use of information contained in this report. Any views and opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect those of FCDO.

Methodology

This mapping was conducted in June 2025. To meet the objectives of this query, both primary and secondary research was undertaken. Secondary research was firstly carried out using a mixture of desk-based research of various institutes, foundations, donors and funders, and the research team's prior knowledge of key stakeholders already operating within the space as a baseline. The findings were supplemented by Key Informant Interviews (KIIs) with a small selection of consultants.

Findings

This section is broken down into the following sections: bilateral and multilateral donors; foundations and philanthropy; business donors, corporate social responsibility (CSR) and corporate foundations; high net-worth individuals and families; other. Table A highlights each donor that has been researched and included in this document and indicates the population groups they target through their funding. More detail on each donor follows. High-level findings indicate that donors have appetite to fund projects that support a range of population groups, with the majority having a strong focus towards gender, children and youth/young people. Disability inclusion is an funding interest across multiple donors, however, the level of disability inclusion-related funding from certain multilateral donors (such as African Development Bank) is very limited. This is also true of some private foundations and funds. There is very little focus from donors on LGBTQI+ disability inclusion. While for many donors the target population group is chiefly women and girls, inclusion of other population groups tends to be embedded intersectionally through cross-cutting thematic areas, such as education or economic empowerment.

This research demonstrated that while some disability funding is available, it is often distributed across multiple donors in small amounts. Funding from foundations or funds often requires a pre-existing relationship with donors in order for applicants to gain access. Consequently, the effort and resources needed to secure such funding can be significant, potentially resulting in poor value for money and high transaction costs for OPDs and other disability inclusion-focused organisations. This is a structural concern that should be taken into account as FCDO charts its future engagement with wider donor community. Ideally, it would be useful to encourage more donor dialogue and collaboration to make funding mechanisms for disability inclusion more transparent, easily accessible cost-effective for OPDs and the broader disability movement.

This research had certain limitations. Firstly, there is very little information provided on high-net worth individuals and their interest or appetite on fundings such programmes. Additionally, a key informant noted that it is important to understand that this mapping document may only be accurate at the time in which it was researched, since the donor landscape is changing rapidly and frequently. It is recommended that this document continues to be a live document that can be updated on an ongoing basis as the funding environment evolves and as new intelligence emerges.

While the scope of this research did not extend to a closer look into the various donor networks that connect funders on specific topics, key networks that should be highlighted include:

- > The Global Action on Disability \(GLAD\) Network serves as an international coordination body comprising bilateral and multilateral donors and agencies, public and private foundations, as well as key coalitions within the disability movement. The network shares a unified interest in promoting inclusive international development and humanitarian efforts.
- > Disability and Philanthropy Forum serves to advance disability inclusion, rights, and justice across the philanthropic sector. 'The Disability & Philanthropy Forum mobilizes philanthropy to dismantle ableism by increasing funding for disability inclusion, rights, and justice; amplifying the leadership of disabled people in the philanthropic sector; and educating philanthropy to build a culture of inclusion.' Members include both US-based and international funders.
- > Disability Funders Network \(DFN\) is a US-based national membership and philanthropic advocacy organisation 'that seeks equality and rights for disabled individuals and communities by bridging philanthropic resources, disability and community. DFN envisions an empowered and functioning democracy with full equality under the law, equal access to services, unconditional respect for difference and the meaningful participation of all communities at tables where decisions are made.' DFN is an affinity group of the Council on Foundations, the leading umbrella organisation for US private foundations.
- > Philanthropy Europe Association \(Philea\) – formerly the European Foundations Centre – has created a diverse and inclusive ecosystem of foundations, philanthropic organisations and networks working for the common good. It supports members to share data, exchange best practices and connect around common themes and more. Philea convenes a Disability Thematic Network for its members, which brings together European philanthropic organisations ‘to exchange, learn and connect about any issue related to disability with an eye for intersectionality and mainstreaming disability within foundations’ work and programmes.’ The Network aspire to be ‘a unique space for networking and knowledge sharing through the development of collaborative publications, the organisation of joint events and the promotion of a world with zero barriers.’

- > Global Business and Disability Network. Convened by ILO, the Network brings together business affiliates to advance the message, ‘disability inclusion makes good business sense.’ It works to support companies ‘on their journey to become inclusive of persons with disabilities by providing technical guidance and facilitating peer-to-peer exchange among businesses.

Focus on disability, broader inclusion, and rights-based support	IDB's Institutional Strategy through to 2030 commits to addressing the regions vulnerabilities and fostering social and economic progress, while addressing climate change. The core objectives look at reducing poverty and inequality, addressing climate change, and bolstering sustainable growth. IDB's approach to reducing poverty and inequality recognises the impacts on gender inequality and exclusion of diverse groups, and reflects the multidimensionality of poverty and inequality and therefore operate across three pillars: job creation, opportunities for higher living standards (e.g. education, health, infrastructure), and redistribution and protection from shocks. People with disabilities and other marginalised groups, such as indigenous people, Afro-descendants are named as groups of interest to IDB, through prioritising disaggregating data by race, ethnicity, disability, sexual orientation and gender identity. The strategy is also fully consistent with the United Nations' operationalisation of Leaving no one Behind through the abovementioned pillars.

Name	International Finance Corporation (IFC)
General Scope	IFC seeks to improve the lives of people by investing in private sector growth through connecting economic development and humanitarian needs. It is a member of the World Bank Group and is the largest development institution focused on private sector in emerging markets. Their priorities are climate business; fragile and conflict affected situations; gender; mobilising private capital; sustainability. Commitments include having accountability to the environmental and social impacts of every project it finances, including local communities, transparency and open dialogue. Additionally, it is committed to diversity and inclusion. It works closely with other members of the World Bank to tackle extreme poverty.
Focus on disability, broader inclusion, and rights-based support	IFC have employed 1.5 million women through IFC Direct Investment Clients, made 33.4 million MSME loans to women-owned enterprises and have $58.9 billion outstanding MSME loans to women-owned enterprises. It operates under the World Bank Group Gender Strategy 2024 – 2030, which aims to enable 300 million more women to use broadband, unlocking essential services, financial services, education, and job opportunities, support 250 million women with social protection programs, focusing especially on the poorest and most vulnerable, and provide 80 million more women and women-led businesses with capital, addressing a critical constraint to entrepreneurship growth.

Disability Inclusion Helpdesk Report No: 145

	IFC's Roadmap 2030 for Gender and Economic Inclusion provides a blueprint for how it will work with private sector, and have three priority areas and three cross-cutting themes to advance gender equality and economic inclusion of women and other marginalised groups. While marginalised groups are mentioned, the main focus of these initiatives seem to focus on women. IFC did develop a guide for investors for investing in inclusion through a disability lens, representing an interest and understanding in disability inclusion.

Name	European Investment Bank
General Scope	EIB is the lending arm of the European Union, and one of the biggest multilateral financial institutions in the world, specifically around climate finance. EIB aim to accelerate the green transition, boost technological innovation, bolster security and defence, support regional cohesion and social infrastructure development. Their eight core strategic priorities include: Climate action and environmental sustainability; Digitalisation and technological innovation; Security and defence; A modern cohesion policy; Agriculture and bioeconomy; Social infrastructure; High-impact global investment; Capital Markets Union
Focus on disability, broader inclusion, and rights-based support	The EIB has made disability inclusion a significant focus, as demonstrated by its Diversity &amp; Inclusion Strategy and the practical enhancements made to its systems, policies, and practices over recent years. Earlier this year, the EIB joined The Valuable 500 , aligning itself with 500 globally recognised organisations that prioritise disability inclusion in their management agendas. EIB became a member of PurpleSpace in 2021, the leading global organisation dedicated to supporting disability networks. This membership empowers network leaders to advance the disability inclusion agenda within their respective companies. EIB is also showing examples of prioritising inclusivity within programmes, for example shifting the approach of one-size-fits-all within Bologna's urban planning and development . Name	Global Green Grants Fund
General Scope	GGGF have been operating since 1993, and have been a leading organisation supporting grassroots-led efforts to protect the planet of the rights of people. It let local people take the lead on advancing solutions and strategies that will best fit their needs by providing the resources that meet their needs.
Focus on disability, broader inclusion, and rights-based support	GGGF support over 300 women-led projects per year that focus on protecting the planet. It has increased grant making to projects that address the unequal and gendered impacts of the environmental damage. It advocates for increased support to women's environmental projects throughout the philanthropic community and share analyses on how funders can increase the resources going to initiatives intersecting women's rights and the environment. GGGFs initiatives integrate persons with disabilities into environmental justice efforts. It embeds disability and environmental justice intersection into the Disability Rights and Climate Justice (DRCJ) Advisory Board, a global board focused on encouraging intersectional connections between disability rights and environmental justice. GGGF support OPDs working to promote environmental justice through promoting inclusive consultation to understand the environmental health, livelihood needs, and land rights of persons with disabilities, and ensure it has access to information and participation in climate and environmental policy decisions. It supports disability-led grassroots groups through funding and advocate for accessible disaster risk reduction measures, including inclusive warning systems, escape routes, and shelters. GGGF also support and resource indigenous people's efforts to defend their rights, by helping activists to resist extractive projects, seek legal support, increase awareness of the risks posed by these projects and advance sustainable economic alternatives. It also funds youth movements and provide mentorship to young people pursuing cutting-edge climate change initiatives worldwide, through setting up an advisory board that identify and award grantees or grassroots movements. The board is made up for climate activists who are all under 35 years old.

Name	Ford Foundation
General Scope	Ford Foundation believe that social movements are built upon individual leadership, strong institutions and innovative high-risk ideas. Therefore, the Foundation invests in these three areas by investing in individuals through leadership development, scholarships, exchanges, and professional training programs, building institutions that sustain thousands of pathbreaking organisations working on a broad range of social change issues, and invested in the early stages of novel ideas for social good—among them public media, microfinance, women's rights, public interest law, digital human rights, and many more. Ford recently announced that they are committing $15 Million to advance global disability rights and have a goal of making 25% of all funding disability inclusive by 2027.
Focus on disability, broader inclusion, and rights-based support	Ford Foundation are committed to promoting the rights and priorities of people with disabilities through confronting ableism and expanding participation and inclusion in grant making and organisational practices. It analyses inequality through a disability lens to ensure that grant making reflects experiences of people with disabilities. Every office and program team engages in disability grant making, whether through disability-specific projects or including the disability community in our broader social justice and human rights funding. It has launched a U.S Disability Rights Programme, which helps people with disabilities have greater economic security and realise their rights as a result of diverse coordinated and empowered disability rights and justice advocates, focusing on advancing economic justice, strengthening the disability field, building effective leaders and networks, and cultivating positive narratives. Ford provides two types of grants related to disability: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Disability-specific grants – Focused solely on advancing the rights and inclusion of people with disabilities.</li> </ol>

	2. Disability-inclusive grants – Intentionally include people with disabilities alongside other communities in their work. Ford prioritises funding organisations or projects led by people with disabilities and also works to influence the broader philanthropic sector to include people with disabilities in leadership and advocacy roles. It is important to note that Ford do not have a global grant making programme focused on disability rights, so regional offices and global programmes employ disability lenses in their grant making. These global programmes include civic engagement and government, future work(ers), gender, racial and ethnic justice, natural resources and climate justice, and technology and society. Ford work globally to reduce violence by supporting women- and girl-led organisations, particularly in the Global South, and placing those most affected at the centre of developing solutions. It takes an intersectional approach with race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and a number of other factors by working to dismantle the deeply entrenched attitudes and structures that not only perpetuate violence, but allow it to occur in the first place. It focuses on strengthening feminist ecosystems by supporting diverse feminist and women's rights organisations, movements and leaders in the Global South, shifting the narratives and social norms to elevate the voices of marginalised women and girls, facilitating global coordination and investments by convening and connecting stakeholders across all sectors to develop a shared intersectional agenda and expanding knowledge, evidence and practice through funding research that expands data and evidence.

Name	Disability Rights Fund (DDRF)
General Scope	DRF support disability rights movements to unleash their power and celebrate diversity. It brings an intersectional feminist approach to their work, and base relationships on collaboration, interdependence, joy and accountability. DRF works at connecting disability movements to resources by providing flexible, multi-year, core funding to emergent and marginalized organizations of persons with disabilities; connecting DRF grantee partners to other donors to strengthen sustainability of disability movements; supporting the advocacy work of disability movements by disability movements; evolving and supporting collective care frameworks within disability movements; and evolving participatory approaches in disability movements. Donors include a range of different organisations, including UKAid, Ford Foundation, Adobe Foundation, Wellspring, Foundation for a Just Society, Oak Foundation, Dreilinden, We Trust, Foundation Chanel and more. In 2024, the budgets for DRF and DRAF exceed $10.5 million and approach $2 million, respectively. The implementation of the strategic plan began in April 2024. In its first year, two major achievements include shaping our approach to movement-building and assessing the financial implications of changes to the structure and operational expansion. These efforts will help solidify the programmatic models and ensure alignment with the overall strategic direction.
Focus on disability, broader inclusion, and rights-based support	It has cross-cutting priorities, which include gender justice, inclusive climate justice, youth rights, economic justice, solidarity with indigenous peoples, inclusive LBGTQI+ rights, and advancing racial justice. These cross-cutting priorities fall into their funding of unleashing the power of movements, driving change through peer and collective learning and opening spaces for advocacy.

About Helpdesk reports: The Disability Inclusion Helpdesk is funded by the UK Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office (FCDO), contracted through the Disability Inclusion Team (DIT) under the Disability Inclusive Development Programme. Helpdesk reports are based on between 4 and 5 days of desk-based research per query and are designed to provide a brief overview of the key issues and expert thinking on issues around disability inclusion. Where referring to documented evidence, Helpdesk teams will seek to understand the methodologies used to generate evidence and will summarise this in Helpdesk outputs, noting any concerns with the robustness of the evidence being presented. For some Helpdesk services, in particular the practical know-how queries, the emphasis will be focused far less on academic validity of evidence and more on the validity of first-hand experience among people with disabilities and practitioners delivering and monitoring programmes on the ground. All sources will be clearly referenced.

Helpdesk services are provided by a consortium of leading organisations and individual experts on disability, including Social Development Direct, Sightsavers, ADD International, Light for the World, Humanity & Inclusion, BRAC, BBC Media Action, Sense and the Institute of Development Studies (IDS). Expert advice may be sought from this Group, as well as from the wider academic and practitioner community, and those able to provide input within the short time-frame are acknowledged. Any views or opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect those of FCDO, the Disability Inclusion Helpdesk or any of the contributing organisations/experts.
